We see once more before us the happy, golden-haired Kate, who so often, like a ray of sunlight, in years gone by made our heart glad by her presence. Ever dutiful, loving, looking only on the bright side, it seemed to us that there was in store for her a long, happy life. Today the news came that she had gone to the Better No more will her sweet voice cheer need of her and called her home. When she crossed the Dark River methinks as she reached the farther shore she was clasped by little Tangle whom years ago the Savior gathered home, and was led by her to the Beautiful City "where many mansions be." Though she has left us in almost the springtime of life her memory will be ever green, and the world is better for her having lived in it.

Mr. J. K. Brink, who travels for a Kansas City house, and whose business takes him all over Kansas, came in last evening from a trip to the south. He reports on life's burdens lighter. The Father had every hand a large and spiecdid wheat acreage and all the fields in fine condition. Mr. Brink says that the crop in the southern portion of Kansas is in far finer condition than in northern Kansas. Mr. Brink also reports that in every county in state in which he has traveled of late there is a better feeling, the farmers and merchants are in better spirits, have more money and have a strong feeling of confidence in the future. The recent fine rains have been general and the ground is thoroughly soaked with sufficient moisture to put the new wheat well on its way.

A cough the mainly respondible for the bloodshed that attended the coup d'état whereby Napoleon III obtained his thr The uncorrections Marchal de St. Armand had charge of the military operations. But he was unwilling to assume the direct responsibility of ordering the troops to fire upon the people, being not altogether con-tain as to the result of Napoleon's signora-ble enterprise. When the moment for action arrived and the mon began to show signs of semsping made the troops, the brigadier generals under his orders sent an officer to him at headquarters to sak him what they were to do Strangely enough St. Armand was solved at that moment with a violent fit of enughing, which lasted for several minutes. Finally, when it censed, the general just managed to gasp the words, "Ma sacres tours" they cured

The officer, having waited until the general had recovered his branth, repeated the question. Again St. Araund was miled entrated, as on the previous occusion, with the parting anniamation of "Ma sacres tour," The officer was no fool; he could take a hint he well so any one clee, and anicking, he left St. Arnaud's presence. On returning to the troops in was asked what reply St. Armend and unde. "The general's only words and community were man-sorrer tone" (managers everybody). These monuments were aboved to the letter, and many thousand people were shot down and injuncted in consequence.—Marquise de Fontency in New York Recorder.
